IN PREPARATION for the grand opening of the Hermosa Beach Playhouse, Libby Earl of Torrance listens intently to suggestions from Director Charles Gray, while Bobby Cooper holds the script. December 19 will bring to the South Bay area a brand new theatre, built on the pier at Hermosa Beach by professional theatre craftsmen headed by Charles Gray, film actor and director, and formerly director of the Torrance Accent Theatre. The opening play, "The Joyous Season," was selected primarily to celebrate Christmas time in the coastal cities, and to bring a renewed vote of confidence in individual activity and faith. Written by Phillip Barry, "The Joyous Season" was performed in New York by Ethel Barrymore, Montgomery Clift and Eva Marie Saint. Reservations may be made by calling or visiting the theatre itself, located at the end of Pier ave. in Hermosa Beach.

King Seeks Aid to L.A. Ship Yards

In a continuing drive to halt the rising unemployment trend in Southern California, Congressman Cecil R. King this week again called upon the U.S. Maritime Commission to allocate a portion of the shipbuilding program to the Los Angeles area.

Congressman King advised Maritime Administrator Clarence G. Morse that a Department of Labor report last week stated that the "Los Angeles-Long Beach area is scheduled for further layoffs in the aircraft industry."

"The distressed condition of the shipbuilding industry in the Los Angeles area is well known and the award of a shipbuilding contract now would help restore this industry here and would tend to alleviate the effects of the aircraft layoffs," King stated.

The contract currently under consideration by the Maritime Commission calls for the construction of seven vessels for the Moore-McCormack Steamship Lines.

Congressman King pointed out that the award of a portion of this contract to Southland shipyards would bring about the employment of some 1500 additional skilled workers in this area.

First 'Snark' Squadron to Be Activated

U. S. Air Force "Missileairmen" who will man the world's first intercontinental guided missile squadron, will be graduated at formal military exercises here on December 17, the Air Force announced.

The 105 graduates will be capable of performing pre-launch preparation of the 5,000 mile USAF-Northrop Snark SM-62 guided missile and will use this knowledge in establishing the nation's first operational intercontinental guided missile unit.

Ceremonies, complete with Air Force band and color guard, will be held here in front of a new test facility designed for pre-launch check-out of the Snark, now in production at Northrop.

The graduating class consists of officers and airmen of the Strategic Air Command, Air Training Command and civilian employees of the Air Materiel Command.

All trainees will have successfully completed an instructional program supervised and conducted by Northrop technicians under the direction of Dr. J. N. McClelland.
